NEW SHOWS ADDED TO STANFORD LIVE SEASON

Studio cabaret series continues with Betty Buckley, Mariza and more, in addition to Andrew Bird on the Bing's main stage

Stanford, CA, August 3, 2017—Stanford Live Executive Director Chris Lorway announced several programming updates to the upcoming fall lineup at Bing Concert Hall. In addition to a newly added show by the virtuoso singer-songwriter and “one-man orchestra” Andrew Bird on October 20, audiences can expect more performances on the organization’s popular cabaret series, which will continue in the Bing’s cozy 160-seat underground Studio.

“Building on the success of our new Studio series, we will present the world-renowned fado singer Mariza in two sure-to-sell-out performances,” says Lorway. “The last time I presented Mariza was at Massey Hall — a 2,700 seat venue in Toronto — so I’m excited to experience an artist of this caliber in such an intimate space.” Considered the embodiment of modern fado, Lisbon’s emotion-filled folk music, Mariza will be joined by friends Jorge Fernando and Custódio Castelo on October 25.

This fall’s Studio lineup also includes appearances by the legendary Tony–winning diva Betty Buckley, performing songs from Broadway and beyond (December 1 and 2); the Patricia Barber Trio, featuring the jazz pianist/vocalist with bassist Patrick Mulcahy and drummer Jon Deitemyer (November 11); former Leonard Cohen touring band member Perla Batalla in a tribute to the late songwriter and Canadian poet laureate (October 7); and Grammy–winning violinist Mads Tolling with his “Mads Men” Colin Hogan, Josh Thurson-Milgrom and guest vocalist Kenny Washington, performing music of the 1960s Mad Men era (October 6).

In addition, due to popular demand, Stanford Live has added a date for Ronnie Burkett’s *Daisy Theatre. The marionette production runs November 15-19 in the Bing Studio.

Tickets for the added shows go on sale August 10, following a presale period for Stanford Live donors. For more information, visit live.stanford.edu or call 650-724-2464.
