THREE NEW SHOWS ADDED TO THE STANFORD LIVE SEASON

Alan Cumming, Black Arm Band and Postmodern Jukebox will come to the Bing in 2017

Stanford, CA, November 28, 2016—Stanford Live announced three more additions to the 2016–17 lineup, its fifth season at Bing Concert Hall.

Alan Cumming, the legendary star of stage (Cabaret) and screen (The Good Wife), brings his acclaimed cabaret show to the Bing on January 26. Entitled "Alan Cumming Sings Sappy Songs,” the program will feature musical selections that mark poignant moments in his life, originally written or made famous by artists like Annie Lennox, Rufus Wainwright, Billy Joel, Lady Gaga, Katy Perry and more.

On February 7, the Black Arm Band’s dirtsong will take audiences on a musical journey through Australia’s cultural heartland. Set against a stunning backdrop of moving imagery and text, the performance includes songs performed in 13 different indigenous languages.

Picture Miley Cyrus’ “We Can’t Stop” as a doo-wop ditty. Coming to Bing on February 15, Scott Bradlee’s Postmodern Jukebox is a rotating musical collective that reimagines Top 40 hits in a variety of musical styles from the past.

All three shows go on sale December 1, following a presale period for subscribers, donors and Stanford affiliates. For more information, visit live.stanford.edu or call 650-724-2464.
